Family Promise Secures $20,000 Grant from Clayton® to Prevent Homelessness for Families in Southern Chester County

KENNETT SQUARE, PA – Family Promise of Southern Chester County recently received a $20,000 grant from Clayton, ensuring that families in the area receive the support they need to stay safely housed.

The grant is a portion of the $2 million dollars Clayton is donating to the Family Promise national network. The funds are a result of the recently announced partnership extension between Family Promise and Clayton. A Future Begins at Home, the initiative created through this collaboration is focused on supporting families experiencing homelessness by helping them remain in their homes and quickly regain stability. Since its inception in 2019, A Future Begins at Home has helped catalyze over $14 million in additional funding, resulting in more than 43,000 families served.

“Thanks to Clayton, more families will have the stability they need to move forward,” says Carol M. Lowe, Executive Director of Family Promise of Southern Chester County. “We can work together to keep families in their homes by preventing eviction.”

In addition to Clayton’s generous financial support, they have donated 20 homes to the Family Promise national network since 2019. These homes are used primarily as transitional housing, allowing families to stay together while receiving case management and support services as they work toward permanent housing.
